Unlike other cognitive instruments, this method lends itself very well to a description which can unite several readings creating a background that is shared among the theoretic samples of reference used by professionals. Moreover, a phenomenological method through a philosophic Counselling practice applied to "taking care" people who live in first person a phenomenon of drug addiction can represent a valid and innovative helpful report concerning a prevention and care of an addiction. Institute: Department Addiction Pathological, Sert North Point Health and management of alcohol-related problems. Address: n°3, via Galilei, Valdagno (VI), Italy. Subject: letter of presentation by Mr. Matteo Pellizzari

Mr. Matteo Pellizzari, graduated in philosophy and specialized in philosophical counseling, worked on a research project in this Department from September 2007 to June 2008, for a total of 400 hours.

During the research project, in order to achieve a correct phenomenological analysis of addiction, Mr. Pellizzari was able to participate in the following activities during the Research Project:

- a) Regular meeting of multi-professional personnel dealing with the management and rehabilitation treatment of alcoholics and drug dependent patients.
- b) Therapeutic groups with patients.

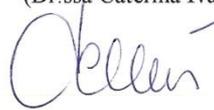

Specifically, the contribution of his research and diverse training, together with existing skills, helped add to the a different perspective to the group's way of thinking, which stimulated debate and produced new awareness.

Moreover Mr. Pellizzari has shown that he understands the nuances of the complex phenomenon of addiction. Within therapeutic groups (multi-therapeutic community, aid groups, management and art therapy) he played the role of a participating observer, working with the coordinator of the group.

In my opinion the research project conducted by Mr. Pellizzari has been extremely helpful in clarifying, through a new perspective, the phenomenon of addiction.

Subject: Letter of introduction Mr.Matteo Pellizzari

Mr. Matteo Pellizzari, a graduate in Philosophy from the University of Verona, who attended the Master Triennial Philosophical Counseling and Training has successfully passed the final exam, received Counselor degree in philosophy, on 15 December 2009.

Mr. Pellizzari, in his formative years, has developed expertise in relation to general psychology, psychopathology, clinical education and applied philosophy. He also demonstrates significant expertise in the application of phenomenological methods in various aspects of social interest (addiction, bullying, racial integration) with the aim to clarify and facilitate the understanding of these phenomena.

Mr. Pellizzari has also demonstrated considerable preparation in the study and understanding of the phenomenon of drug addicts, preparation derived from a series of studies and research done in this area.

For these reasons and for the strong motivation that characterizes him, I believe Mr.Pellizzari to be most suitable to continue his training and research both in Italy and abroad.
